Half Moon In A Blue Sky by Willy Kelly

Verse 1:

Half moon in a blue sky, driving the long road
Green trees mellow clouds and music from long ago

It rings in my head, It rings in my ears and
It beats in my chest and wells up from my memories…

Verse 2:

He did so many wrong things, walked through so many wrong doors
Wrong like jumping from a moving car and lying to yourself ‘bout who you are

It rings in my head, It rings in my ears and
It beats in my chest and wells up from my memories…

Chorus:

There’s a song thats sung in the indigo night
As the mist rolls off the water
And you won’t hear no wrong or right
from the tide that moves with time..

Half moon in a blue sky, knows the night is coming
It sees the horizon too, cares not what a man might do

Or what a man might think, where a man might walk
Sees a man is small and lost in eternity...

Chorus:

There’s a song thats sung in the indigo night
As the mist rolls off the water
And you won’t hear no wrong or right
from the tide that moves with time..
From the tide that moves with time..
